Impressions of the Six-Day Cycle Contest at MacFarland aroused the crowd at the six-day bicycle race from its lethargy to-day by an unexpected sprint which was a striking example of grit and gamensss. He failed to make a gain, A tire had previously exploded on Mac-Farland's wheel, hurling him down the embankment and against the rall.

Five days of continuous riding have finally told on the weary pedallers in the six day at the Garden. The strain brought on by efforts to keep up with the old record of Miller and Waller has made the eight teams left in the race hind the old figures steadily. They were seven miles behind at the 107th hour, and it doesn't seem likely that they will equal the old marks in the last thirty-

Miller and Waller Strong. Miller and Waller were perhaps the strongest six-day men ever teamed, and the performances of the present bunch of riders in beating their records for so many hours was remarkable. Experts, however, who remember the riding of the old team, have felt right along that this year's riders would their cots in the training rooms, and more than 5,000 men and women in the Garden didn't seem to care either. Many of these on the hard seats or in the boxes were asleep with head in hands, or necks bent far back and giving forth nasal sounds that reminded one of a loaded truck needing axle grease.

"Pedlar" Palmer, whose remarkable endurance yesterday spurred on the other riders, after his partner, Gordon Walker, had broken his collarbone, lis now teamed with Peter Drobach, but they are about out of the race. The pace set by Palmer yesterday was too much for human endurance. To-day he was game and fighting, but it was no use. Palmer is like a drowning man reaching for a straw. His eyes are sunken, his cheeks are bloodless, he moves with effort. He is tired out and his brain is not atert.

It would surprise no one if the "Pedlar" declared all bets off before many hours and sought sleep. He is already far behind the leaders and a man less determined than he would realize that he is in a hopeless fight.

Detective Chase told Magistrate Steinert that an additional discovery of loot had been made in the Condon home in Whitestone. He had gone there in the absence of Mrs. Condon to-day and found two dress suit cases filled with stolen silverware and jewelry. In one bag were eighteen gold watches.

"Altogether," said the detective, "there was enough to keep the family in fine style for the winter." When Mrs. Condon heard this she protested that sue had been ignorant of the existence of the plunder in her home.

Two complaints were made out against Condon, one of felonious assault on Mrs. Yeaser, and another of grand larceny. Ball was fixed at $10,000 on each charge. The prisoner waived examination and was committed to the Tombs to awalt the action of the Ceand Jury.

MADE SOUND AND WELL BY 3 SETS OF CUTICURA

"My trouble began about three years go with little black swellings scattered yer my face and neck. They would disappear but they would leave little black scars that would itch at times so I couldn't keep from scratching them. Larger swellings would appear in the same place and they were so painful I could hardly bear it and my clothes would stick to the sores. The first doctor I went to said the disease was acrofula, but the trouble only got worse and spread. By this time it was all over my arms and the upper part of my body in big swellings as large as a dollar. It was so painful that I could not beat to lie on my back at night. The second doctor pronounced my disease inflammation of the lymphatic glands. He atopped the swellings, but when they would break the places would not heal. He tried everything that he could but to no effect. He said I might be cured but it would take a long time. I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies and used them according to directions and in less than a week some of the places were nearly well. I continued with the Cuticura Remedies until I had used three sets, and now I am sound and well. The disease lasted three years from the time it commenced until f was cured.
